Description	The speaker has been welcomed by the coordinator to the session on behalf of AZAD college of Pharmacy and gave an introduction about the speaker. The coordinator has handed over the session to the speaker and he delivered his lecture on the given topic Research Problem and Literature Review. Research problem identification helps any researcher to formulate that sequence of research work. Research problem also helps you avoid unnecessary steps during the research. A research problem is the preliminary step in conducting a research study. The research problem should have great clarity since the research process in itself generates more questions. Importance of literature review in research includes - Provides information for relevancy and coherency to check the research. Apart from elucidating the continuance of knowledge, it also points out areas that require further investigation and thus aid as a starting point of any future research. He also explained about the importance of Literature Review: A literature review is a comprehensive summary of previous research on a topic. The literature review surveys scholarly articles, books, and other sources relevant to a particular area of research. The review should enumerate, describe, summarize, objectively evaluate and clarify this previous research. Finally he focused on the four major goals of a literature review: To determine what exists in the scholarly literature. To identify possible gap(s) in the scholarly literature for further research. To inform the research topic, theory (if applicable), and associated methodology. To compare/contrast against findings resulting from the current study. Totally 55 members participated in this seminar.

	If your paper is accepted for publication, it will then head into production. Can anyone publish a research paper? In theory, yes. There are no requirements that an author needs to have an academic title or education. Neither does one have to be affiliated to a university or other form or research institute. Finally she spoke regarding publishing in Scopus? The vast majority of researchers still believe that getting their papers published in Scopus journals is easy and does not require much effort. Such people more often than not, learn the hard way (through repeated rejections) that this is not so. The Coordinator acknowledged the speaker and the session concluded with vote of thanks.

Venue	Seminar hall
Description	The speaker has been welcomed by the workshop coordinator to the session on behalf of Pratistha Institute of Pharmaceutical Sciences and gave an introduction aboutthe speaker. The coordinator has handed over the session to the speaker and he delivered his lecture on the given topic Research Problem and Literature Review. Research problem identification helps any researcher to formulate that sequence of research work. Research problem also helps you avoid unnecessary steps during the research. A research problem is the preliminary step in conducting a research study. The research problem should have great clarity since the research process in itself generates more questions. Importance of literature review in research includes - Provides information for relevancy and coherency to check the research. Apart from elucidating the continuance of knowledge, it also points out areas that require further investigation and thus aid as a starting point of any future research. He also explained about the importance of Literature Review: A literature review is a comprehensive summary of previous research on a topic. The literature review surveys scholarly articles, books, and other sources relevant to a particular area of research. The review should enumerate, describe, summarize, objectively evaluate and clarify this previous research. Finally he focused on the four major goals of a literature review: To determine what exists in the scholarly literature. To identify possible gap(s) in the scholarly literature for further research. To inform the research topic, theory (if applicable), and associated methodology. To compare/contrast against findings resulting from the current study. Totally 45 members participated in this seminar.
